

Lecture

Judith Bennett, University of Southern California

Monday, 23 October 2006, 4:00

The McCune Conference Room, 6020 HSSB in The Interdisciplinary Humanities Center, University of California at Santa Barbara

“Philippa Russell and the Wills of London’s Late Medieval Single Women”

The lecture will examine one of the first wills of a self-identified “single woman” in late medieval London, written by Philippa Russell in 1458. It also compares the information found in Philippa Russell’s will to what is known about other never-married, female testators in fifteenth-century London.

Sponsored by The Medieval Studies Program, Women’s Studies, The Department of History, and the IHC

For further information contact Edward D. English – english@history.ucsb.edu